

Education and Training: Learning and Working in a Society in Flux (OECD Documents)

Summarizes the main discussion of the joint OECD-Korea international seminar on the linkages between education and work. Ongoing structural changes in the world economy, technology, demography, and globalization provide the background for reviewing the role of education and training policies in ensuring flexible and socially and economically desirable adjustment to change. The policy and institutional responses of dynamic Asian and Latin American economies are compared and contrasted with those of OECD countries.
